University Placement Office Flooded with Inquiries

Current statistics released by the Placement Office at Indiana University of Pennsylvania reveal both a growing trend for services and decided trends in the ratios of vacancies to graduates in particular fields, according to Dr. E. Samuel Hoenstine, Director of Placement at the university.

During the past 1965-66 academic year the university Placement Office processed approximately 22,000 listed vacancies both in education and in business and industry. This represented an increase of nearly 5000 above the previous year 1964-65.

The number of inquiries and employment interviews scheduled for non-teaching career opportunities has been increasing constantly. The office in 1965-66 listed 661 non-teaching vacancies with 301 employers in business and industry as well as government.

Dr. Hoenstine has contacted approximately 100 organizations in business, industry and government to inform them of Indiana's present placement program and to obtain career information and literature for a placement library designed for use by students.

Of the total of 866 graduates in May, 1966, of the School of Education or of the Departments of Business Education, Art and Art Education, Music and Music Education or Home Economics Education, 642 or 74% are now teaching (518 or 60% in the schools of Pennsylvania, 124 or 14% out of State).

A total of 47 or 5% elected to go on to graduate schools, while 46 selected some branch of the military service (predominantly through the U. S. Army Reserve Officers Training Corps on Campus), and 81 chose other fields. Only five graduates were reported as still seeking employment as of August 15.

Of the 49 liberal arts graduates of the School of Arts and Sciences who worked through the Placement Office, 30 or 61% began careers either in industry or in government or entered graduate school. Only four graduates were reported as still seeking employment as of August 15.

Highest significant demand for placement in a particular teaching area was in that of special education for the mentally retarded, where there were 89 teaching vacancies listed for every qualified graduate. There were 799 vacancies at 428 schools, with only nine graduates.

German ranked second at 78-1 (78 vacancies for only one graduate), physics third at 36-1 (255 vacancies for seven graduates), elementary education fourth at 33-1 (7149 vacancies at 1028 schools with 216 graduates), guidance fifth at 31-1 (467 vacancies at 278 schools for nine awarded master's degrees).

On the other hand, four fields are seen as becoming relatively crowded. Demand still exceeds supply, however, in geography at 3-1 (64 vacancies at 53 schools for 23 graduates), biology at 3-1 (101 vacancies for 34 graduates), social science at 6-1 (474 vacancies at 351 schools for 78 graduates) and home economics at 6-1 (502 vacancies at 409 schools for 73 graduates).

It must be admitted that these ratios are somewhat inflated in that virtually all schools with file listings of their vacancies with placement offices of many colleges and universities so that a true ratio could come only from comparing total college graduates for 1966 current vacancies.

In addition to listing vacancies, the Placement Office mailed more than 3200 sets of credentials to prospective employers for students graduating in 1966, graduate students and alumni. These credentials are mailed at the request of either the applicant or the employer.

The greatest number of credentials were mailed in the area of elementary education (735), followed by English (384), social science (323), science (258), home economics (246) and business education (233). Peak month for mailing was May, followed by March and June.

Labor-Management Symposium Currently Underway at IUP

A "Symposium and Training Program Designed to Enhance Human Resource Development," a planned seminar in labor-management relations, is currently under way at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

A series of 12 seminars in the area of labor and management relations, this program is in the nature of an extension or continuing education course at the college level. It has been made possible through the approval of a federal grant of $6675 under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965. The University will provide $2275 in matching funds for a total project cost of approximately $8900. This grant will finance the total cost, with participants paying nothing.

Each of the 12 seminars is being conducted by a specialist in the field, with four to be led by university staff members. The seminars will be held as weekly Tuesday evening meetings which will follow dinner at Foster Dining Hall. Ten of these will be formally instructional in nature.

Subjects of the seminars include industrial economics in a capitalistic society; labor unions—organization and operation; the sociological factor in labor-management relations; organization structure—the management team; industrial psychology. Title VII—Civil Rights Act of 1964—Equal Employment Opportunity Law; collective bargaining and administration of the contract; labor law—arbitration, mediation, conciliation, unfair labor practices; effective communications—verbal and written; and the changing industrial scene.

An all-day field trip to Washington for conferences with spokesmen for the Department of Labor is included in the program. Also set is a symposium involving invited experts from campuses and government agencies and a personnel director with a firm with a history of outstanding labor-management relations.

Designed as an action program in the fullest sense of the term, this semester will bring together representatives of competing programs for training and for the exchange of ideas. There is not now any similar program offered in this area.

While the university is acting as an interested participant, this program, to a nearly exclusive degree, is a community project. It is hoped that this project might serve as a model for similar projects in other community areas.

Initial planning for the Symposium was conducted by the Indiana County Industrial Management Club and leaders of local labor groups.

Taking part as speakers or discussion leaders for the ten instructional meetings will be competent industrial psychologists, sociologists, economists, political scientists, statisticians and specialists both from within and without the university.

Faculty Forum Alumni Unit To Support General Association

A new unit of the General Alumni Association was recently formed at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Comprised of members of the faculty and staff of the University, and known as the Campus Unit of the General Alumni Association, the new group hopes to lend its support to the activities and projects of the General Alumni Association.

Among specific projects which the unit hopes to undertake is a "Keg Party" to be held each Homecoming Day and active participation in the events of the Spring Alumni Week-end. Local social affairs are also planned as regular activities of the new organization.

Elected officers of the new Unit at a recent meeting were Dr. James W. Laughlin, Director of Admissions—president; Mr. Maurice Zatur, of the Geography Department—vice president; Mrs. Mary Jane Boering, Business Education Department—secretary; and Dr. E. Samuel Hoenstine, Director of Placement—treasurer.

At the present time approximately 70 members of the Indiana University faculty and staff are members of the new group.

Alumni Day Activities To Take On New Look

Alumni Day this year promises to be bigger than ever as a result of a change which was recently adopted by the Alumni Association. For the first time, alumni activities will begin Friday evening, May 26, 1967, with the meeting of the Executive Council at 7:30 p.m. in Cogswell Hall Auditorium.

This change will allow more time for the meeting of the General Alumni Association, which in recent years, was frequently cut short because of the many activities which had to be scheduled on the one day.

The general meeting will be held Saturday at 10:00 a.m. in John S. Fisher Auditorium. The annual alumni luncheon will follow in Foster Hall Dining Room at 12:15 p.m. at which time the annual alumni citation will be awarded.

The Saturday morning meeting will include election of officers for 1967-69. Also up for final approval will be the new Constitution which was approved by the Executive Council last fall.

The Projects Committee will report on the two activities which the Association has undertaken this past year—the construction of a fountain at Weyandt Hall (approved last year) and the installation of a second fountain, this in the area west of Stabler Library, which is being constructed as a memorial to Rose Brennan McManus by her many friends.

Afternoon activities include class meetings and reunions and a dinner at Foster Hall beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Sunday will see approximately 800 Indiana students awarded degrees at commencement exercises scheduled for Memorial Field House at 2:30 p.m.

Department of Law Enforcement Organizes Advisory Council

Composed of representatives from all areas of administration of justice, an Advisory Council to the Law Enforcement Department of the School of Arts and Sciences at Indiana University of Pennsylvania is currently assisting in the organization of that department.

With the aim of offering both degree and associate degree programs through both four and two-year programs at the university, the Law Enforcement Department plans to offer credit courses leading to an academic major beginning in September of the 1967-68 academic year.

Members of the Advisory Council working with Harry W. More, Jr., department chairman, in that organization are:

John Boors, police chief of Edgewood Borough near Pittsburgh.

John P. Cavanaugh, district supervisor of the Board of Parole in Butler.

Edwin M. Clark, Judge of District Court of Indiana County in Indiana.

Eugene DeMatt, superintendent of the Youth Development Center in Cresson.

Joseph Dussia, Captain of Pennsylvania State Police in Greensburg.

Vern Folley, Chairman of the Department of Police Science and Administration at Harrisburg Community College in Harrisburg.

Lt. Col. John I. Grosnick, chief of staff services for Pennsylvania State Police in Harrisburg.

Shannon C. Hartland, chief of police of Westmont near Johnstown and President of the Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Association.

James H. Knapp, superintendent of plant protection at U. S. Steel Corp. in Duquesne.

Walter B. Kunkle, chief of police of Mount Lebanon and chairman of the educational committee of the Western Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Association.

James F. Maroney, superintendent of State Correction in Pittsburgh.

Harry W. Owens, chief of police of Indiana Borough.

Ernest S. Patton, director of classification and treatment for the Bureau of Correction in Camp Hill.

George W. Purvis, Captain of the Police Academy of the Pittsburgh Police Department in Pittsburgh.

Joseph S. Volpe, chief of police of Punxsutawney.

C. J. Williams, Jr., supervisor of plant protection and safety at the Johnstown plant of Bethlehem Steel Corp. in Johnstown.

The council recently met at the university to discuss current progress in organization as well as a proposed institute concerning police-community relations and scheduled for three days, another for police instructors (80 hours) and another on supervision and techniques (80 hours).

The group further explored possibilities for scholarships to be offered students of the department, an internship program in which selected senior students will be placed in agencies related to their field of interest and extension courses to be offered off campus.

Dr. Willis E. Pratt, President of the university, presented greetings at luncheon, while Dr. Charles D. Leach, director of university development, outlined development planning at Indiana especially as related to the curriculum and to the Law Enforcement Department.

Representing the university on the Advisory Council are Dr. William W. Hassler, Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, and Dr. Raymond L. Lee, coordinator of social sciences.

Indiana Well Represented At Annual Citation Luncheon

The Nineteenth Annual Citation Luncheon of the All Pennsylvania College Alumni Association of Washington, D. C. was held February 4 in the Blue Room of the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D. C. Approximately 225 people, representing 40 Pennsylvania Colleges attended the affair which was founded by Yashti Burr Whittington, an alumna of Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Messages of congratulations and best wishes to Dr. John C. Warner, President Emeritus of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, to whom the 1967 Citation was awarded, and the All Pennsylvania College Alumni Association were received from the President of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson, United States Senator from Pennsylvania, Hon. Joseph B. Clark, several former recipients of the Citation, as well as numerous Presidents of colleges and universities in the State.

The Association's 1967 Citation award to Dr. Warner in recognition of his outstanding contribution to the advancement and extension of the American ideals of education was presented by the President of the Association, Miss Dorothy Ramale, who is also President of the District of Columbia Alumni Association of Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

In accepting the Citation, Dr. Warner made some remarks which he titled "Where Do We Go From Here in Higher Education in Pennsylvania." He stated: "In essentially all nations the great majority of the people are asking for a better life—for a higher standard of living—for a more affluent society." He further stated that a more affluent society is possible only through increased productivity per man hour and more opportunities to invest capital more productively. These factors account for the major part of economic growth and depend upon education of almost all kinds and at all levels.

Dr. Warner also said: "It seems to me that the pure liberal arts undergraduate curriculum should these days be considered a proper preface for continuing one's education in professional and graduate schools, and high school graduates lacking the ability and motivation for future admission to professional and graduate school should not be directed into liberal arts baccalaureate programs, they should be directed into post-high school terminal one- or two-year programs for training technicians or into certain undergraduate professional programs leading to the baccalaureate degree. For all students, of course, some solid courses in liberal subjects should be—I've always insisted they must be—a part of the education and training for all vocational, technical, professional and scholarly fields."

In concluding his remarks, Dr. Warner stated: "I am convinced that as long as the mass of our voters insist that Federal, State and Local Governments provide a steadily better standard of living, full employment and the elimination of poverty, our educational system must emphasize education and training which prepares students for useful employment in our society. There is no reason why appropriate effective liberal education in the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences should not be a part of all educational programs. We as educators should insist on this."

Following the awarding of the Citation and acceptance thereof, the Beaver College Glee Club under the direction of Dr. Dorothy J. Haupt, rendered a musical program which was most enjoyable and quite well received.

Indiana was well represented at the luncheon by the presence of the following: From the University—Dr. Willis E. Pratt, President of Indiana University and a former recipient of the Citation Award, Miss Mary Esch, Mrs. Audrey Graham, Miss Helen Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Sanford and Miss Paula Jerto. From the District of Columbia Alumni Association—Miss Dorothy Ramale, Miss Nora Lee Orndorff, Mrs. Mary Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gienger, Mrs. Naomi Funk, Mrs. Jane Palmer, Mrs. Kathryn Jarvie, Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Margaret Anderson and her sister, Miss Mabel McComb and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Stauffer.

Three new faculty members have joined the staff in various capacities while four others substitute for regular faculty members on leaves of absence beginning with the second semester at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Joining the main campus staff is Grace E. Dick as an associate professor of biology and Stephen D. Pastor as an instructor in mathematics. Three others have been appointed to the staffs at the Armstrong County and Punxsutawney centers of the university.

Assigned to the Armstrong County Center in Kittanning are Mrs. Phyllis G. Roumm as assistant professor of English and Geno C. Zambotti as an assistant professor of chemistry. Donald C. Mahan will serve as an instructor in business education at the Punxsutawney Center.

A native of Diamondville, Miss Dick completed a bachelor of science degree in science at Juniata College and a master of arts degree at New York University. She has completed additional work at New York University, Rutgers University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Fresno State College.

Recently completing his master of education degree at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Pastor had previously served as a statistician assistant for the U. S. Army Ballistics Research Laboratory, assisting in the collection and processing of data on helicopter weapons systems.

Before receiving his bachelor of science degree from California State College, Pastor, a native of McKeesport, Pennsylvania, attended the University of Pittsburgh and Oberlin College in Ohio to complete a major in mathematics.

A graduate of Indiana University of Pennsylvania who received her master of education degree from Indiana before doing additional graduate work at Ohio University, Mrs. Roumm has most recently been a teacher of English in the Indiana Area Public Schools in Indiana since 1959.

Before her appointment at the Indiana School, Mrs. Roumm had held similar positions at Apollo High School at Apollo and at Elders Ridge Vocational High School at Elders Ridge. She has also been a supervisor of student teachers from the university.

Previously a teacher of science and physical science at Lenape Technical School for Armstrong County in Ford City before accepting his new position with Indiana University, Zambotti had been a teacher of mathematics and sciences at Elderton High School at Elderton for eight years.

A veteran of U. S. military service, Zambotti received a bachelor of science degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and a master of education degree from the same university before completing additional graduate work at Thiel College. He also studied electronics in the service.

Mahan has been a teacher in business education at Purchase Line High School since his graduation from Indiana University of Pennsylvania in 1958. He completed his master of education degree at Indiana and is a veteran of the U. S. Army.

Since 1961 he has been a supervisor of student teachers from Indiana University and has also completed additional graduate work at the University of Pittsburgh. At Purchase Line Mahan has taught bookkeeping, typing and business law.

Charnego has been a graduate assistant or laboratory instructor at Indiana University of Pennsylvania since September. He received a bachelor of science degree from that university in 1965 and has since completed additional work at Indiana toward a master's degree.

Dr. Kipp returns to the active teaching faculty at Indiana for this second semester after having retired as chairman of the Art and Art Education Department in 1964. He had been associated with the university staff since 1936.

Mrs. Kraus most recently served as a lecturer at Russell Sage College Evening Division in Albany. Receiving both bachelor of art education and master of art education degrees from the School of Art Institute in Chicago, she is currently a doctoral candidate at Pennsylvania State University.

Miss Krug has been head of elementary education at Defiance College for the past 14 years until her retirement in 1966 and has also been with Rio Grande College in a similar position, East Stroudsburg State College and the University of North Carolina. Columbia University awarded her the degree of master of arts.

Mrs. Flossie Wagner Sanford Cited by Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

Mrs. H. Everett Sanford (Flossie Wagner), 1917, was among ten Pittsburgh district women cited recently by the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette for distinguishing themselves in their various capacities during the past year. Mrs. Sanford was listed among the outstanding women of 1966 for her work with the Allegheny County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

As the Unit's first woman president, Mrs. Sanford hopes to do all she can toward cancer prevention. Her interest in this work began in 1947.

Following what she calls an "educational line" during her administration, Mrs. Sanford hopes to increase through timely check-ups the number of cures among persons who develop cancer. An untiring worker, she makes frequent visits to clubs and women's organizations to speak with the members personally about what they can do about cancer prevention.

Mrs. Sanford, who earned her B.S. and M.A. degrees at Columbia University, has been both a public school teacher and a member of the faculty at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

She has been active in the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, holding several important offices in the organization, including the presidency in 1965. In recognition of her services the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs established the Flossie Wagner-Sanford Loan Fund at Indiana.

In Alumni activities at the University, Flossie Sanford has done more than her share. She served as president of the General Alumni Association from 1962 to 1964 and has been a member of the Executive Board since 1958. She has also served on many important committees, recently chairing one which made a number of extremely worthwhile recommendations for giving new life to the Association.

Fountain Honoring Rose McManus To be Erected at Indiana

Over $2000 has thus far been contributed to the Rose Brennan McManus Memorial Fund, according to Mary L. Esch, executive secretary-treasurer of the General Alumni Association and Director of Alumni Affairs at the University.

Present plans call for the erection of a fountain in the area west of Rhodes R. Stabley Library. The project, authorized by University president Willis E. Pratt and the General Alumni Association, is still accepting contributions, Miss Esch points out. These contributions may be sent to her at the University.

Rose Brennan McManus, who passed away in May, 1966, had served the General Alumni Association for many years, both as president of the Association and as president of the Pittsburgh Unit.

For her loyal service to the University, Mrs. McManus was awarded the Tenth Annual Alumni Citation in 1963.

Four Graduate Fellowships Established by H.E.W. Department

Four graduate fellowship grants for the preparation of professional personnel in the education of handicapped children (particularly in the area of mental retardation) have been allotted Indiana University of Pennsylvania by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Approved in the amount of $22,800 for the four grants or $5700 each for the 1967-68 academic year, the fellowships will be made use of by the Department of Special Education at the university, with Dr. Morton Morris as chairman.

Selection of graduate students to take advantage of these fellowships will be based on scholastic aptitude, achievement and recommendations from faculty members and administration. The student must plan a graduate program in the area of mental retardation leading to a master of education degree.

To be considered are the student's ability to work independently as well as his desire and ability to do graduate level work along with an evidence of leadership capability and of interest and potential for contributing professionally to the field.

If any money should remain with the university after the four initial grants have been made, additional awards may be made. Dependency allowances are included in the total, with allowances required for additional dependents available directly from the U. S. Office of Education as funds are available.

According to Dr. Morris, there are currently ten graduate students in his department at Indiana with a sharp increase in enrollment expected next year. The program leads to a master of education degree in special education, with in-service education geared to meeting needs of teachers in the field.

As presently designed, the graduate curriculum offers specialization in two fields—special education for the mentally retarded, and speech and hearing. The emphasis in both areas is on subject matter concentration along with professional studies and electives.

Standards of competency expected of graduate level students are well in line with those established and emphasized by various professional organizations such as the Council for Exceptional Children and the American Speech and Hearing Association.

Students are expected to have an undergraduate background in the area of the mentally retarded which should include basic work in exceptionality, curriculum and methods, educational psychology, mental hygiene and human growth and development.

The graduate program then provides a broad, interrelated sequence of courses; this emphasis on a broader perspective in special education means that students are exposed to experiences in education for the socially maladjusted.

Included in this experience is orientation in rehabilitation, administrative and organizational problems and work in community organization which serves to increase the professional stature of personnel who have already acquired practical experience.

It is hoped that such a graduate program as is now being offered at Indiana will help to fulfill the need for greater educational opportunity for teachers and prospective teachers in special education. Current demand shows 89 teaching positions open for every qualified teacher in the field.

A new Learning and Research Center soon to be constructed at Indiana University will enhance educational opportunity in that it will include provisions for Speech and Hearing, Reading and Psychological Clinics as well as two special demonstration classrooms.

One such classroom will be designed for primary-aged children with special learning disabilities, while the other will be designated for children of intermediate age functioning at an educable retarded level. These classrooms will be furnished with special one-way observation windows.

The Department of Special Education is currently housed in the Special Education Wing of Keith School which was constructed in 1961 and which also provides classroom space equipped with one-way vision screens for purposes of observation and demonstration. There are also certain clinical facilities.

Along with the current facilities as well as those planned for the new Learning and Research Center, there are several related cooperative agencies and facilities in which students may attain field experiences in Indiana, Oakmont, Ebensburg, Pittsburgh, Greensburg, Johnstown, Spring Church and Portage.

The present Department of Special Education first began in 1961 when the Department of Public Instruction recommended that Indiana develop a program in special education which would go far beyond meeting minimum certification requirements.

After its first beginnings, this 1961 recommendation was fully implemented during the 1964-65 academic year with the organization of the department with Dr. Morris as chairman to coordinate and develop programs for the education of exceptional children.

Future planning calls for advances in curriculum development, better classroom facilities, greater classroom observation of children by university students and improved audio-visual facilities and clinics. Development of the graduate program is to be guided by additional faculty members.

The undergraduate program in special education leads to the bachelor of science in education degree with State certification in the area of special education for the mentally retarded. All curricular programs, both undergraduate and graduate, are fully accredited.

Future plans of the university call for a strong emphasis to be placed on the idea that the Department of Special Education should serve not only the university and its students but also the public schools and teachers of the surrounding areas or region.

Indiana University Marching Band Participates in Inaugural Parade

Ranked as the largest college or university band in Pennsylvania with 128 men, and further acclaimed as one of the best, the Indiana University of Pennsylvania Marching Band was invited to march in the inaugural parade honoring incoming Governor Raymond P. Shafer in Harrisburg on January 17, 1967.

Marching along with the band was the Pershing Rifles Drill Team and Color Guard. This parade marked the first time the University Marching Band has been represented in an event such as this.

Under the direction of Daniel DiCicco, the marching band this year added 32 men to its ranks for a grand total of 128 men plus a drum major and two featured twirlers—also a new feature of the band—to make it the largest college or university band in the East.

DiCicco likes to think of his band as a show band rather than a military band, although their style and cadence of marching rank it alongside that of any military unit. He emphasizes that the emphasis is on pure entertainment.

Members of the band are recruited annually from each of the schools and departments of the university—membership is by no means limited to the students of the Music and Music Education Department. As a matter of fact, a full 40% of the band members are from other departments.

Other members of the faculty assisting with the band are Charles Davis as music arranger, Gary Olmstead (a new staff member and a graduate of the University of Michigan) as percussion instructor and Robert Ensley of the English Department as script writer.

Complete sponsorship of the band is provided by the Student Cooperative Association in terms of uniforms, music, meals and transportation. A complete set of uniforms alone costs $14,000, with the complete set of band instruments valued at $50,000 to $75,000.

Organized under the sponsorship of the U. S. Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) at the university, the Pershing Rifles drill team and color guard consists of approximately 20 men who have earned recognition in various military drill meets.

1967 European Study Tour Still Accepting Reservations

Reservations are still being accepted for remaining vacancies in Contemporary Europe 1967, a six-week study-travel project sponsored by the Social Science Division of Indiana University of Pennsylvania according to Bert A. Smith, director.

Included in the program, which is in its third year at Indiana, is travel to ten countries in Western Europe—Great Britain, the Netherlands, Denmark, West Germany, East Germany, Austria, San Marino, Italy, Switzerland and France. Austria and San Marino represent additions to the tour.

The study-travel project, which carries with it six undergraduate or graduate credit hours, is devoted to the study of the politics, economics, sociology, history and culture of that part of the Western world from which the American culture springs.

Tentative plans for the tour, which is open to students of any Pennsylvania institution of higher learning on a first-come-first-served basis, call for departure from the United States by jet to London June 19, 1967, with return from Paris tentatively set for July 26.

Before departure students will do background reading; during the tour they will attend a series of 22 related lectures in addition to regular sightseeing; throughout the summer they will maintain an extensive diary of their observations. Total cost will be $1299 exclusive of an $84 tuition fee.

Additional information on the tour (proposed itinerary, cost, etc.) is available upon request. Interested persons should write to Bert A. Smith, Department of Political Science, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Pennsylvania.

Summer Institutes for Teachers Planned at Indiana University

For the third consecutive year Indiana University of Pennsylvania will offer a six-weeks summer institute in English for secondary school English teachers.

The institute, to be conducted on the Indiana University campus from June 26 to August 4, is authorized under Title XI of the National Defense Education Act and is administered by the U. S. Office of Education.

The Indiana institute will provide a program of graduate study in language and composition for qualified English teachers. Brochures describing the program have been sent to secondary school English teachers (7-12 grades) in all 11-county area in Western Pennsylvania and to all secondary school principals in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Inquiries about the institute should be sent to Dr. James R. Green, Director, NDEA Institute in English, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Pennsylvania.

Indiana University of Pennsylvania is one of five institutions in Pennsylvania and one of 95 throughout the nation selected by the U. S. Office of Education to give English institutes this summer.

Other Pennsylvania institutions conducting English institutes are University of Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, Gannon College, and Bucknell University. Indiana is the only institution in Pennsylvania and one of a few throughout the nation to offer an English institute in all three years of U. S. Office of Education sponsorship.

Preference will be given in the selection of Institute members to applicants who qualify by the following criteria:

1. Experience in teaching English at least three years and at least ten more years before retirement.
2. Presently teaching English full time.
3. Submission of undergraduate transcripts that show at least an English minor.
4. The recommendation of the high school principal about the applicant's professional interest as shown by classroom and departmental activities, continued studies, and participation in professional organizations.
5. Acceptance of the condition not to undertake any other commitments of employment to study for the six weeks the Institute is in session.
6. Acceptance of the condition to live in the dormitory provided by the Institute. No commuting will be allowed.
7. Have not previously attended an NDEA Institute in English.

The Indiana University NDEA Summer Institute in English will concentrate on an integrated program of language and composition. Participants will attend classes in linguistics and composition, meet instructors in individual conferences, and engage in seminar type discussions.

In the composition component the participant will be asked to write a number of varied papers—perhaps ten or twelve—and to examine specimens of writing—his own and that of others.

The study in the language component will deal with the nature of language, the development of language in the individual, the history of the English language, usage and dialects, and a detailed examination of the structural analysis of the English language.

The seminar component is intended to illuminate the processes being used in the class sessions. A number of activities will be introduced to aid the participants to see the relationship between what they are studying and practicing and what they will teach in their own classrooms.

Participants will receive six graduate credits and will receive stipends for themselves and their dependents. Members of the institute will be housed in Turnbull Hall on the Indiana University campus and will be served meals in the University dining hall.

In addition to serving as director of the Institute, Dr. Green will be the instructor of the language component. Dr. Craig G. Swauger and L. J. Bright will be the instructors of the composition component and George Seacrist and John Vargo will direct the seminar.

All except Mr. Vargo, who is an English teacher at Shaker Heights, Ohio, are members of the Indiana University English faculty.

A second institute, this a seven-week institute in geography, is scheduled June 16 through August 4. This is sponsored at Indiana for the second consecutive year through the U. S. Office of Education.

One of only 26 such programs approved throughout the nation for the summer of 1967 and the only one in Pennsylvania, this institute will provide six graduate or nine undergraduate credits in geography and education designed to provide additional academic strength for teachers of geography.

With this purpose in mind, enrollment in the institute has been restricted to those present or future teachers of geography or world cultures who have completed not more than nine semester hours in the subject. The institute, therefore, is not designed for geography majors but rather for non-majors.

Enrollment will be limited to 30 teachers of high school or junior high school geography, social science and/or world cultures from Pennsylvania as well as adjacent states and New England. Applications are now being accepted through the Department of Geography at the university.

The entire institute program will center around three culture areas of the world—Latin America, India and Africa. As a unique feature of the program, a demonstration high school class in world cultures will be observed by the participants through closed circuit television.

Three outstanding geography authorities on the respective cultural areas will take part in the institute—Dr. John Augelli of the University of Kansas, Dr. Paul Karan of the University of Kentucky and Dr. Harm De Blij of Michigan State University.

Dr. Augelli is an authority on Latin America, Dr. Karan a native of India and Dr. De Blij a former resident of South Africa and author of several books on Africa. Margaret Puff of Butler Senior High School will assist in the instruction of the high school demonstration class.

Indiana University faculty members participating in the institute will be Dr. Thomas G. Gault, chairman of the Department of Geography, as director, James E. Payne as co-director and Mamie Anderzhon. Both Payne and Miss Anderzhon are members of the Department of Geography.

Each participant in the institute will be eligible under provisions of the National Defense Education Act to receive stipends for themselves and their dependents. Participants will be housed as a group in Wyoming Hall on the university campus.

Selection of applicants will be based on previous record and promise of future contribution to the teaching of geography and particularly of world cultures. Preference will be given those who qualify according to the following criteria—

Current or future contract for teaching Geography of World Cultures (Grades 7-12).

A college or university baccalaureate degree.

Completion of nine semester hours or less in geography.

Evidence of professional promise and ability.

No previous attendance at any National Defense Education Act (NDEA) Geography Institute.

Mural Completed as Graduate Thesis In Weirton (W.Va.) Public Library

Completed as a graduate thesis at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, a mural depicting the steelmaking operations of the Weirton Steel Company done by Mrs. Carl (Brenda) Brown of Burgettstown was recently placed in the Weirton Public Library.

Made of 66 copper plates, the mural measures eight by ten feet and represents "a year and a half of work in a difficult media," according to Dr. Lawrence F. McVitty, chairman of the Art and Art Education Department at Indiana University.

Highly commended for this outstanding piece of work, Mrs. Brown has been given several notices and articles published in newspapers and in the Weirton Steel Employees' Bulletin. She completed both her undergraduate and graduate work in art at Indiana.

The enamel process used in the mural is an old process of applying glass based enamels to metal—in this case copper plates seven inches square. The effect achieved is one of high gloss, obtained when the powdered glass is applied to the surface of the metal and fired in a large kiln.

Control of the colors under a temperature of approximately 1250 degrees requires skill and a good knowledge of the process. The finished product as completed by Mrs. Brown attests to her understanding of and skill in working with these techniques.

Mrs. Brown is the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Brown of 2475 Home Street in Indiana. She is the former Brenda Davis and has previously resided in Confluence and in Indiana.

School of Home Economics Names Bendix New Dean

Dr. Ella C. Bendix, previously professor of home economics at Radford College in Radford, Virginia, was recently appointed professor and Dean of the School of Home Economics at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Bendix replaces Dr. Opal Rhodes, who had resigned from the Indiana faculty at the close of the 1964-65 academic year. Dr. A. Carolyn Newsom, acting dean of the School since September, will continue as chairman of the Home Economics Education Department within the School.

Dr. Bendix has seen 20 years experience as a home economics teacher, extension specialist and home economics extension adviser. She also served with the U. S. Navy WAVES during World War II.

In her work at Radford Dr. Bendix taught home economics subjects including home management, home nursing, household equipment, family finance, vocational home economics education and adult education at the graduate level. She also advised freshman and sophomore students at the college.

Working with various federal government programs from 1952 through 1965, Dr. Bendix received six special assignments from different government agencies as a professor of extension education, extension specialist or home economics extension adviser.

Her most recent government assignments came in the summer of 1965. As an extension specialist for the Foreign Training Division of USDA in Washington, she prepared a home improvement workshop program and prepared for publication a leaflet on homemade laundry equipment.

As professor of extension education for the Federal Extension Service of USDA, she taught a home improvement workshop at Ohio University which had as its participants 43 African women from 13 different African nations. Dr. Bendix taught agriculture extension methods and related subject matter.

Prior to entering federal government service, she worked with the North Carolina Extension Service and with the Tennessee Extension Service. Her first professional assignment was as a teacher of home economics at Glenville High School in Jackson County, North Carolina.

A native of Tennessee, Dr. Bendix received her bachelor of science degree from the University of Tennessee, master of arts from Columbia University and doctor of philosophy from Cornell University, the latter two in rural education. She has also studied at Iowa State College and the University of California.

Former Home Economics Chairman Honored at Pittsburgh Reception

Dr. Opal T. Rhodes, formerly chairman of the home economics department at Indiana, was honored by a number of her friends at a reception held December 29, 1966 at Chatham Center, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

At the reception Dr. Rhodes was presented with a number of gifts including a tree of friendship which contained hundreds of notes from former Indiana students.

Among those attending from Indiana were Dr. Norah Zink, Miss Mary Esch, Miss Dawn McClowry, and Miss Golda May Rhodes.

Members of the reception committee were Mr. and Mrs. Allen M. Woods, Mrs. Inez Stahura, Mrs. Jean Kosmack, and Mrs. Marie Carroll.

Former Student Pens New Book

The December 1966 issue of Harpers Magazine and the February 1967 issue of Readers' Digest featured an article by Edward Abbey entitled "The West's Land of Surprises."

The article is part of a book entitled Desert Solitaire, soon to be published by McGraw-Hill Publishing Company.

Abbey, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Abbey, live at Home, Pennsylvania, attended Indiana during the January and September terms of 1947.

Other books authored by Abbey include Jonathon Troy, The Brave Cowboy, and Fire on the Mountain. Titled "Lonely Are the Brave," The Brave Cowboy was made into a movie which was recently shown on NBC-TV's Saturday Night at the Movies.

Abbey presently makes his home in California where he serves as a park ranger at Lassen Volcanic National Park.

Indiana Geography Department Largest in the Nation

According to a report released by the Commission on College Geography of the Association of American Geographers and the National Science Foundation, the undergraduate Department of Geography at Indiana University of Pennsylvania ranks as the largest in the nation.

In its report entitled Geographic Manpower: A Report on Manpower in American Geography published in December the Commission credits Indiana with a total of 196 graduates in geography between July 1, 1960, and June 30, 1965.

Second ranking institution was the University of Minnesota with 180 graduates during the same period. Other Pennsylvania schools among the top 50 were Clarion State College (13th), Pennsylvania State University (24th), California State College (25th) and Slippery Rock State College (29th).

Alumnus Authors Textbook

Dr. Tullio J. Pignani, B.S. in mathematics education 1948, is co-author of a new mathematics textbook to be published next year by Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc.

Suited for advanced high school, college and university courses, Elements of Trigonometry covers the usual trigonometry topics, but puts these in the context of modern math.

Dr. Pignani is chairman of the mathematics department of East Carolina College, Greenville, North Carolina, where he has been since 1964. Prior to that he had been on the faculty at the University of Kentucky.

He has also lectured in mathematics at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and at Loyola University of New Orleans.

Dr. Pignani earned his M.S. degree at Bucknell University and his Ph.D. at the University of North Carolina.

His collaborator is Paul W. Haggard, also a member of the faculty at East Carolina College.

Learning Resources Specialist Program Offered at Indiana for First Time

The Department of Learning Resources and Mass Media at Indiana University of Pennsylvania now offers a full graduate curriculum leading to certification as a learning resources specialist.

With Dr. Norman W. Sargent as chairman of the department, the graduate curriculum is presently being taught by three members of the department faculty—Dr. J. Robert Murray, Donald M. MacIsaac and William McCavitt. Additional staff will probably be added in the near future.

Candidates for certification in the area of learning resources must hold present certification in some area of either elementary or secondary education and must then complete 24 semester or credit hours of graduate work in the designated curriculum as well as related content subjects.

Those in professions other than education, that is in business or industry, may also follow the curriculum program of the learning resources specialist and then be granted a special certificate of proficiency by the university which would recommend the candidate for a position in the field.

A graduate student presently enrolled at the university, with the full approval of his program adviser and department chairman as well as Dr. Sargent, may elect up to ten hours in the learning resources and mass media curriculum along with his current major work and apply this to certification.

As a feature of the learning resources curriculum, up to six of the 24 graduate hours required must be completed as an internship program as approved by the university. This enables the candidate to work in a carefully planned variety of roles.

This variety would come through working with a comprehensive regional learning resources center or similar situation—television broadcasting or closed circuit facility, motion picture production agency, programmed learning development program, learning resources workshop or approved equivalent.

Work in such a program will be conducted under competent university and agency supervision and will then be rated both by the cooperating agency and the university. The balance of course work must then be selected from four related areas.

A total of 20 credit hours in courses will be offered the student in learning theory relative to learning resources and communications, two in fundamentals of library science, 24 in production and utilization of learning resources and four in organization and operation of learning resources centers.

Additional information on the graduate curriculum leading to certification as a learning resources specialist may be obtained by writing Dr. Norman W. Sargent, Chairman, Department of Learning Resources and Mass Media, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Pennsylvania.

Colonel Madsen Pens Letter To Former Students and Staff

The following letter, recently sent to a number of former Indiana students and staff members by Colonel A. T. Madsen, contains considerable information about many of our alumni and friends, and is reprinted below for the benefit of alumni who might wish to know the whereabouts of these persons.

1 February, 1967

After Mrs. Madsen and I heard from you and so many other former IUP cadets and Kaydeens, my new year's resolution was to write you a letter. We thought that you might like to know where some of your classmates are and what they are doing, so, belatedly, I'll try to give you a brief rundown on the ones that we heard from during the holidays. However, before I do that, I will bring you up to date on the former cadre members who sent along holiday greetings.

LTC and Mrs. John P. Burke are at Ft. Dix, New Jersey where COL Burke is commanding a battalion. If you read the Army Times a few weeks ago, I'm sure you noted that he was selected to attend the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas next August.

MAJ Harold Boozer is in Vietnam with the 1st Infantry Division. Apparently the Commanding General of the Big Red One (1st Inf. Div.) has an ice cream complex and insists that his troops have that frozen creamy substance at least once a day—heat, mud, bugs notwithstanding. Consequently, in addition to being the division supply officer, MAJ Boozer is also the division's "Good Humor Man."

Sergeants Kohut and Hostetler are retired in the Indiana, Pennsylvania area. SGT Kohut is working with the Boy Scouts of America and I believe SGT Hostetler is working for Montgomery Ward. SGM Fulham is still holding forth at Military Hall.

CPT Wilbur Shirey, '63, is in Vietnam. Although we didn't hear from him, we heard from his wife, Karen, who is teaching school in DuBois, Pa. The Shireys left Germany last June, had two weeks leave in Pennsylvania, and went to Ft. Lewis, Washington where they were stationed until Wil left for Vietnam in November.

CPT Robert Burelli, '63, is still the Aide-de-Camp to General Kenderdine, Commanding General, Defense Personnel Support Center, Philadelphia. Reading one of Bob's letters gives you the feeling that he still has the same enthusiasm he displayed as the cheerleader the first time the Cadet Corps went to a football game in the fall of '62.

We didn't hear from CPT Joe Saffron, '63, but we got a very nice note from his mother. Joe is presently stationed at Ft. Lee, Virginia. Shortly after Christmas we saw Merceda Biordi's, '65, picture on the society page of the Indiana Evening Gazette. She and Joe became engaged during the holidays.

LT Jim Fulton, '64 (now Captain I believe) sent us a card from Vietnam, but he was due to arrive back in the States in time to spend Christmas with his folks. As near as I can ascertain from MAJ Boozer's recent letter and from an article in the 19 January Indiana Evening Gazette, Jim did an outstanding job in Vietnam. He received the Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Medal, and the Purple Heart. Congratulations, Jim! As far as I know, Jim is now on the staff and faculty at the Quartermaster School, Fort Lee, Virginia.

LT Terry Wagner, '64 and his wife, Susie (Davis), are in Berlin, Germany. He is with the Supply and Services Division, Berlin Brigade. Shortly after he arrived there, Terry was assigned as Executive Officer, Service Battery and his battery commander was CPT Roger Flemming, '61. Terry says that he and Susie are thoroughly enjoying Berlin.

LT Larry Panaia, '65, is at Ft. Hood, Texas with his wife, Carole (Churchill), and their daughter, Carla Ann, who was born on 20 July '66. Larry is a company commander and is doing real well. His company won honors for the B.C.T. cycle and two of his NCO's won the Fourth Army Soldier of the Quarter awards.

LT Tim Sexton, '65, has returned from Vietnam and he and his wife, Helen (Greenman), and their daughter, Maureen, who was born on 22 April '66, are living in Alexandria, Virginia. Tim is the Executive Officer of an OCS company at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. As you may or may not know, Tim was wounded in Vietnam on 26 March and spent three or four months in the hospital with a knee operation as a result of a combat injury. He says he is fine now. I know that Tim, like so many other IUP graduates, did an outstanding job in Vietnam.

LT Rolando Toccafondi, '65, is in Korea and is the Secretary/Custodian of three Officer's Clubs and fourteen NCO Clubs. He mentioned that he ran into LTs John Trimeloni, '65, and John Watta, '66, both of whom are with the 7th Infantry Division, and LT Larry Shick, '64, who is at the Carroll Depot near Taegu.

LT Garry Cohen, '65, was in Orleans, France when we heard from him. Until Christmas, he and LT Dave Bunton, '65, were sharing an apartment there, but Dave took leave during the holidays and returned to the States to get married. Garry spent a year with the 2d Armd Cav Regt on the Czech border and ended up as a Troop Commander. After a short stay in Orleans, he was transferred to Saarbrucken, Germany. Both he and Dave Bunton seem to think that being in the QMC is a real change after a tour as "Gung Ho" tankers. Garry mentioned that LT Nelson Marks, '65, is a tank company executive officer in Manheim, Germany.

LT Tom Hoffman, '65, has finished his detail in the Artillery and is now a full-fledged QM type. Like Garry Cohen and Dave Bunton, Tom feels that being in the QMC is quite a change, particularly "after commanding what was undoubtedly the best unit in USAREUR," to quote Tom. He mentioned that he saw CPT Jim Dickey, '63, who will be going to Vietnam shortly. He also saw LT Dave Smiley, '64, who is at Kaiserslautern, Germany.

LT Bob Matteer, '65, is with the 4th Infantry Division in Vietnam "at a base camp, sitting in a desert, cactus and all." He claims he hasn't been shot at in the three months that he has been there and he hopes it will continue that way. So do we. Among the many jobs he lists—one is "Chief Thief for the company." I don't recall that or any related courses on our PIO (program of instruction) at IUP.

Marti Wilson, '65, (Kaydeen Colonel '63-'64), now Mrs. Gib Armstrong, the wife of LT Armstrong, United States Marine Corps, is living in Havelock, North Carolina. Her husband is stationed at Cherry Point Marine Base. The Armstrongs are expecting an addition to the family in April. Marti is hoping for a boy, but she is open for "good" suggestions for a girl's name—just in case.

LT Monty Murty, '66, is at Ft. Campbell, Kentucky. That is all I can tell you about him because he just signed the card, "LT Monty R. Murty."

Paula Romansky, '66, (Kaydeen Colonel '64-'65) is teaching school near Boston, Mass. She is living with Jan Fulton, '66, Jim Fulton's sister, and seems to be enjoying Boston very much. She mentioned that she was planning a trip across the country this summer, so we are looking forward to having her stop off in Colorado Springs to see us.

Esther Dadigan, '66, (Kaydeen '64-'65) is a stewardess for TWA. She is presently based in Kansas City, but expects to be transferred to New York in March and start flying international routes. Esther sounds real enthused about her job and it appears that she is thoroughly enjoying it.

LT Craig Garnett, '66, is stationed at Fort Carson here in Colorado Springs, so we see him quite often. He is the S-4 in a Tank Battalion which keeps him pretty busy.

We also received Christmas greetings from the sisters of Delta Zeta and the fraters of Tau Kappa Epsilon at IUP.

Hearing from you at Christmas really added so much toward making our holiday season a most enjoyable one. Mrs. Madsen and I often think of, and talk about you. Take care of yourself and drop us a line when you find time, or better still, drop by and see us in Colorado Springs.

With warm personal regards from Mrs. Madsen and myself,

Sincerely,
A. T. MADSEN
Colonel, GS

News and Activities of the Units

PITTSBURGH UNIT

Mrs. H. E. Sanford has been honored as one of the ten outstanding women in Pittsburgh. She is president of the Cancer Society and will head the Pittsburgh Cancer Society Drive in the April Crusade.

Our Pittsburgh Unit's Christmas dinner party held December 13, 1966 at the Women's City Club in the Penn Sheraton Hotel was a gala event. The tables were attractively decorated with dark red and pink sprays of poinsettias and Santa's red mittens decorated in colorful sequins were used as at the corner of Craig and Fifth favors. Sixty-eight were present; seven men were brave and fearless of the weaker sex and seemed to enjoy the evening.

Our President, Mrs. William Tuttle, greeted and welcomed the guests and members. A delightful program, which included singing of Christmas carols, had been arranged by the committee.

We were sorry to learn that our good friend, Mr. Thomas McManus, had disc trouble and was in the St. Joseph Hospital. He has returned to his home.

Our evening meeting was held January 10 at the Bank Building

Avenue. Mrs. Tuttle brought an exchange student to speak. Foran Lunder spoke of her home in Norway. Subjects she discussed included the State religion, which is Lutheran, and the Norwegian schools and the foreign languages which are taught in them. Miss Lunder will return to her homeland in June after visiting various parts of the United States.

Betty Piper fell on December 3 and broke her right knee cap. She spent four weeks in the Columbia Hospital and is now at the Negley Nursing Home, 550 S. Negley Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Hazel Stephens had a successful eye operation.

PHILADELPHIA UNIT

It "ain't" so that the weather will not let you go; that is, if you really want to go. On a wet, drippy morning, January 14, ten members of the Philadelphia Unit set out for Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. On the way they stopped in King of Prussia at Wanamaker's, where they had luncheon.

Freedoms Foundation was founded in 1949 and is "nonprofit, nonsectarian, and nonpolitical." The Foundation's sole purpose is to encourage all Americans to understand the rights, freedoms, and responsibilities they enjoy as Americans under (our) constitutional democratic form of government."

The plant of the Foundation will consist of 10 buildings of which the Martha Washington Building and the Congressional Medal of Honor Building are completed. The archives stored here seem endless.

If your patriotism needs stimulation or if you want expression for it, visit the Foundation.

PITTSBURGH-NORTH BOROUGHS UNIT

The Pittsburgh-North Boroughs Unit of the General Alumni Association of Indiana University of Pennsylvania met at "Katerer's Korners" in the North Hills for a delicious luncheon at 12:30 on November 14, 1966. It was a Bridge Benefit for our Alma Mater and was most successful financially, as well as socially.

The day was an ideal fall one, and the woodsy setting, the fall decorations and the ladies' fall costumes made the picture one to be long remembered.

Our faithful and talented member, Miss Margaret Bardonner, always conducted "Operation Aprons" in the Bazaar Booth. Now, even after that has disappeared from our programs, she continues to make these beautiful aprons during her spare moments for her friends, and recently turned over the profits of her summer's work to our treasurer, Miss Margaret Allen. A big "Thank You" from us all to Margaret!

On January 14, 1967, our oldest, and one of the most faithful members at all our meetings, passed away. She was Miss Estelle Luty of Bellevue. She had celebrated her 90th birthday in October.

Estelle was graduated from Indiana in the class of 1898. She later specialized at the then Pittsburgh Kindergarten College and continued in that field in the Pittsburgh School System until her retirement. She was very loyal to Indiana and attended all the Class Reunions. She is survived by a sister in Oklahoma and nieces and nephews. We shall miss her quiet presence in our unit very much.

The Spring Business Meeting and Luncheon will be held at Kaufmann's Dining Room in March. The annual May Luncheon at the University Club will be a "gathering of the clan" after many winter vacations.

The last of May will find many of our group wending their ways to the University campus for class reunions.

In June, our president, Miss Catherine Taylor, with the Sewickley group, will be hostess for our June picnic.

Thus, another successful Unit year will come to a close, with great plans for September.

CAMPUS UNIT

For more than a year a Campus Alumni group, comprised of Indiana University Faculty Members, has been quietly functioning. The General Alumni Association granted the new unit its charter on Alumni Day, 1966.

Organized under the leadership of Dr. James W. Laughlin, the then informal group held a Homecoming, post-game, Keg Party in October, 1965. Homecoming, 1966, found the newly chartered group again sponsoring a Keg Party which it hopes to make an I.U.P. tradition. Approximately 150 alumni found their way to this social hour in Foster Hall Lounge. Plan to bring your friends next Homecoming.

In December, 1966, the Campus Unit elected the following officers: Dr. James W. Laughlin, Director of Admissions, president; Mr. Maurice Zucur, Geography Department, vice president; Mrs. Mary Jane Boering, Business Department, secretary; and Dr. E. Samuel Hoenstine, Director of Placement, treasurer.

The basic aim of the Campus Alumni Unit is service to the University and its alumni. Two committees particularly, the Speakers' Committee and the Projects Committee, will serve as liaison agents between the University and its graduates.

At its most recent meeting, February 22, the unit approved a plan for participation in Alumni Day activities, as well as $1.00 per calendar year dues. The president was empowered to appoint various committees. The Chapter will meet on April 6 for a social evening in Foster Hall.

TRI-TOWNSHIP UNIT

Twenty-five members of the Tri-Township Alumni Unit of the Indiana University of Pennsylvania attended the group's annual Christmas party—a covered dish dinner—held at the Commodore Methodist Church on Monday, December 12, 1966. Members of the Ladies Aid of the church served the dinner. The tables were beautifully decorated in the seasonal motif by Mrs. Grace Forsythe.

Neal Griffith of Indiana very ably presented the program theme "Christmas" by showing slides and giving the commentary.

The president, Mrs. Vivian C. Lovell, presided over the meeting. Invocation was given by Eugene Forsythe and greetings by Miss Mary Esch, executive secretary of the General Alumni Association.

Carol singing was accompanied by Mrs. Virginia Neal at the piano. Miss Mae Brown and Miss Grace Brown were in charge of the gift exchange.

Others in attendance were: Misses Mary and Sarah Bagley, Mr. and Mrs. George Ober, Mrs. Emeline Keating and daughter Patricia, Mrs. Sarah Thorburn, Miss Gertha McAnulty, Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson, Mrs. Mary Harwick, Mrs. Sarah Lewis, Mrs. Hazel Myers, Mrs. Helen Ober, Roy Muckle, Allan Tremba, William Lovell and Charles Walker.
